Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1, 3, 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Cave (U.S. 6404746 B1).

3. Cave teaches (abstract and figures 2-3) a method for providing supplementary services in a packet voice network, comprising: receiving list of information elements from a sending station; inserting the list into a call control message, wherein any supplementary services information included in the information element is preserved; including a locally significant message in a globally significant message, wherein any supplementary services information in the locally significant messages is preserved; and sending the call control message and the globally significant message to a receiving station.

4. Regarding claims 2 and 4, Cave teaches (column 4, lines 26-48) Q.932 and H.225.

5. Regarding claims 10-17, Cave teaches (abstract and figures 2-3) a network device for providing supplementary services in a packet voice network, comprising: a first communication device operable to communicate with a sending node; a second communication device operable to communicate with a receiving node; and a tandem node operable to transfer supplementary services information from the first communication device to the second communication device such that the supplementary services information is transferred to the receiving node after the sending node sends a disconnect message.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 6-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cave.
8. As mentioned above, Cave teaches all of the limitations of claim 1.
9. Cave does not teach RELEASE, RELEASE COMPLETE, DISCONNECT and FACILITY messages. However these messages are inherent in Cave's system in order to convert into packetized voice and maintain the supplementary services as taught by Cave.

Conclusion

10. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Locascio (U.S. 6603757 B1), Burger (U.S. 6353660 B1), Thornton (U.S. 6363065 B1) and Mizuta (U.S. 6584110 B1) are cited to show the state of the art.
